INTERVIEW MEMBER OF NSA ADVISORY BOARD

CPYRGHT

BUD STEELE: "Here in Washington, officers of the National Student Association, the largest and oldest student group in the country, have admitted charges in a forthcoming Ramparts magazine article. For 14 years, the student group has been supported by the CIA, which has recruited agents from within the group. Current NSA leaders say they have been trying to break off the association and that no new funds are being accepted.

"A member of the NSA Advisory Board, Howard Cable, says in addition:"

CABLE: "I hope that this does not resolve itself into a liberal witch hunt, a -- a HUAC in reverse, of some sort. I'm not -- although I think we ought to look into certain kinds of personalities. I think if we have people working for us in some capacity, for example, overseas representatives or any other capacity, that's known about this -- I think we ought to look very carefully into -- well, I think we absolutely ought to terminate their employment."

STEELE: "NSA Advisory, Howard Cable."
